Targeted Muscle Reinnervation (TMR)
A technique used for rerouting nerves in prosthetic arms.

Nerves in the amputated arm are rerouted to the chest muscles. Electrodes are then placed on those muscles, which control joints in the prosthetic arm whenever the brain sends a signal to the nerves.